

Hey WaHi and Walla Walla Online!

Happy Snowy Fall Day aka the continuation of the earth's 2020 identity crisis. Here is how my ducks felt about their first snow (they were born in March):

Today I am covering a handful of tools that you may find really helpful as well as information about yearbook!

Yearbook photos

Walla Walla Online and Wa-Hi are sharing a yearbook this year! Seniors, please send your senior photos to wahiyarbook@wwps.org. Freshmen-Juniors, please take a picture with a blank background and send it to wahiyarbook@wwps.org so they can be published. What a great excuse these pictures are for all of us to get dressed up!

Academic Help is Available!

- If you're struggling with personal scheduling, reach out to me! We have resources available and I or another staff member can bring schedules to your house for you to make a plan for your day.
- If you're not understanding class, make sure you attend the asynchronous time 12:30-2 every day. Teachers are available for small group or individual help sessions. Ask your teacher for the zoom link!
- If you need additional tutoring, we have it available for grades 9-11! wahi.link/tutoring is how you sign up. If you're a senior who wants tutoring, let me know and I'll figure something out :)

Adulting Tip: How to filter emails

With all the emails we are all getting these days, I have found email filters to be really helpful. What's an email filter, you may ask? It is a tool in gmail that identifies emails and automatically will put them in folders and/or skip the inbox.

How you do this:

- In your gmail, click the gear in the upper righthand corner and press "see all settings"
- in the settings, click on filter
- Put the person/address/subject/keyword you want to have filtered in the field and press create filter
- in create filter, click what labels and/or actions you want applied.
- WALA! Your email is much more organized!
